GOLD STAR Mothers met at the Legion Memorial Building where Mrs. Jack Fowler was called on to tell about "The 1954 Women's Forum on National Security" held at the Statler Hotel, Washington, D. C., which she attended in January. Mrs. Fowler stated she heard the theme discussed by Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization; Val Peterson, chief of Federal Civil Defense Administration; Rep. W. Sterling Cole, chairman of Congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy; and Sen. John F. Kennedy and Harold Stassen, director of Foreign Operations Administration. Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, made the keynote address, according to Mrs. Fowler.

Mrs. Fowler said there were 777 delegates of 12 different patriotic organizations in attendance, and that citations were presented by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Pennsylvania to all the national presidents of the organizations for their outstanding work.

Lunch was served by the hostesses of the evening, Mrs. Wendell Meier and Mrs. Grace Smith. The next meeting will be held on the Tuesday of March 2 at the Memorial Building at 1:30 p.m.
